

It was a good day. Other than sitting for too long today. I had a good time. I was selected to be on an interview committee for a new job in our school district. It was a great group of people from different positions in our district and we had a good time doing it. We had 8 interviews today and another on Monday. It is exciting to help in the process and get to know other people in the district better. Doing interviews always makes me look at my skills, strengths and weaknesses. It's a good thing. I also am humbled to help our district out and convey the strengths and weaknesses to others. After that I went to our monthly Education Office Professionals meeting. Tonight I stretched out on the floor and watched a little TV. It was nice to relax.
