

It was a sleepy day. It was great to watch it rain all day long. We need it badly. However it does make you want to curl up in bed and sleep :-D. It was a good day at work. I got everything squared away since I will be out the next two days. After work I talked with Todd Cline about picking him up for the trip. We are riding with the Fox's to the beach for the Men's retreat. I talked with Karise about my apartment building. I packed for the retreat. Home group was good tonight. We discussed Micah's sermon from Sunday. But we spent most of the time talking about a question that another Family Integrated Church had raised. They were losing a lot of 18-25 year olds because they wanted to go to another church to be around people their own age and hopefully find a spouse. We talked about what advice to give them and the advantages and disadvantages of being in a church with not many people your age. It was a good conversation and I enjoyed sharing from my point of view. It was good to hear from others as well. It has been a good day!

Share this:

- Share