

It was a fairly quiet day today at school. The kids have a 4 day weekend, but some wanted it to be 5. We still had some kids acting up. I enjoyed helping some teachers out today. I also got to help the principals of the elementary school out with a report since their data manager had left early. After work, I headed over to the district office. We had an Education Office Professionals meeting. There was no speaker so we just had the business portion of the meeting. It went very well and was encouraging. I just chilled at home this evening.

Share this:

- Share