

It was a good day. We had Men's Breakfast at church. It was a good time talking about the Lord's calling in our lives. Worship was sweet and I've been singing "Arise, My Soul, Arise" all day long. Mark's sermon about the call of Levi, the response of the pharases, and the response of Jesus was was exciting. It was also challenging to come and follow Jesus and to bring those around us to Him.

I relaxed and watch the Disney movie "The Black Hole" on cable this afternoon. Then I headed over to First Presbyterian for a catering. It was a reception for their organist who is retiring. It was a busy job but a good one. It was fun to sit down afterwards with all of Marg's crew and talk. I came home and grabbed a shower. Then I watched the first 2 hours of "National Treasure."
