

It was a crazy day at work this morning. Our coffee maker died spilling water all over the floor. I broke out the big perkulator coffee maker and made a big pot. We had a lot of drama with students and discipline issues. But some of the major players will be enjoying a day off tomorrow. But it was a quiet afternoon and I had some good conversations with co-workers today.

After work, I headed over to Target and got the last few things I needed for Christmas. I came home and finished bagging up gifts. I packed up my clothes and other odds and ends. I'm headed to Mom & Dad's after work. I try to blog some but will have a little more limited access. I hope you all have a wonderful CHRISTmas with your families.

Share this:

- Share