

It was a good day. I know I only was away from Antioch for one Sunday, but I missed it and missed the people. It was a good day of worship. Today Mark preached on Jesus' choosing of the 12. He shared about it in the sermon and I would echo it. You need to read "Twelve Ordinary Men" by MacArthur. It gives so much insight on who the disciples were and some of why Jesus choose them.

I grabbed lunch and headed to the house. I relaxed this afternoon and have been enjoying listening to it rain all day long. I watched some cartoons this afternoon and watched "The Italian Job" this evening.
