

It was a busy day at work. I went to make coffee this morning and discovered after a mess occurred that one little piece of metal is important. Someone had accidentally thrown out the filter riser with the coffee filter. This little piece of metal costs $21 and you have to have it. Well we ordered a new one and I made coffee in perk style maker. I helped with two job interviews and worked on attendance. I helped some teachers out with grade issues. After work, I headed into town check my mail, grabbed supper and then headed to church. I ran sound for the rehearsal for Arts Alive's Winter Concert (7pm tomorrow at Antioch Community Church). It went well and was a lot of fun.

Share this:

- Share