It was a steady day at work and it flew by. I had a head ache this afternoon. It was nice to come home and rest and listen to the rain. This evening I caught up with some of the people from church who went to Colombia (via Facebook). It was good to see a little of their trip to Proyecto Libertad on Bocachica. I know they loved being there and working there as much as I did when I went. For more information check out the mission's website
