It was a steady day at work. It was cold in my office most of the day because the boilers were off. But they came back on and made it nice. I worked on enrolling a new student, printing reports, making copies and other odds and ends. After work, I went to the district office for an Education Office Professionals meeting. It was good and the speaker was inspiring. Tonight I watch LOST and was blown away another good episode.

Share this:

• Share