

It was a good day at work. Our schools receptionist was back today. I worked on attendance this morning. I got to help our technology specialist and others out on trouble shooting a problem. I spent the afternoon doing grade reports for several teachers and for the administration. I talked with Mom this afternoon about plans for my Grandmother's birthday party. I check in via phone with a friend who is fighting off the crud that is going around. I got a haircut this evening and relaxed at home.
