

It was a sleepy Monday in that my body is still adjusting to the time change. It was a steady day at work with attendance, scheduling and other odds and ends. I caught up on emails from Friday and discussed different things with my friends the technology specialists. This evening Dan Cubino and I met for our accountability & encouragement time. It was such a blessing to sit down and discuss issues and know he will be praying for me. I enjoy getting to pray for him and his family as well. I'm so blessed to have that brother in my life! I came home, relaxed and watch Little People, Big World.

Share this:

- Share