

I got up this morning and had my quiet time at Mom & Dad's kitchen table. Then I got dressed and started packing up. I hugged Mom and say goodbye as she headed off to work. I finished packing and loaded up. I stopped by my Dad's store and said goodbye. The trip back to Burlington went smoothly. I took the new southern bypass around Greensboro. I got back and unloaded. Then I went and check my mail and grabbed a few things at the store. I caught up on email and blogs this afternoon. I watched a few things off the History Channel on my DVR. I got to talk to Marg and hear about her trip out West and tell her about my Easter. It has been a quiet but a good day. I'm so thankful for spring break. I really needed and I'm glad I have the rest of the week off.
