

It was a beautiful day outside. I relaxed this morning and just took it easy around the house. After lunch, I checked my mail and did a few things around town. Mostly it was just nice to get out and enjoy the weather. I caught up on some things this afternoon and watched some PBS this evening. I was watching the news because of the fire on Sauratown Mountain. I saw that mountain everyday growing up and I have a lot of family members who live very close to the mountain. I'm praying that the Lord puts out the fire quickly so there is no more damage and no loss to the people around.
