

It was a sweet morning at church. I really enjoyed Mark's sermon today on Jesus & the sinful woman. It brought a lot of insight to the story and continues to make me thankful for what the Lord has done in my life. I just want to worship Him with the same freedom that she did.

After lunch, I enjoyed a nap under my electric blanket. I talked with Mom & Dad this afternoon and caught up on their week. This evening I've enjoyed watching the Nationals home opener on ESPN. I'm headed to bed before the end of the game (work tomorrow) but it has been good so far. See the new park has really gotten me excited for my trip up to D.C. this summer to be with the Mancuso's. Rob and I will be going to a Sat. night game there.

Share this:

- Share