

It was a good day at work. I was able to get some scheduling work done and I'm so thankful. Tonight was great. Instead of homegroup, we went to the building. We watched the movie "Amazing Grace". It was the first time I had seen it. It was great. I knew from history class that the UK had outlawed slavery and the slave trade long before the US. It was amazing to see the struggle that men & women there went about to see the trade stopped. It was also good to see and be reminded in this day and age that you can have a strong faith in Christ and have an influence in politics.

Share this:

- Share