

It has been a full day. I got up and headed to church. We had men's breakfast today and talked about accountability groups and several of us shared about groups we are in. Worship was sweet today. Mark preached about Jesus healing the woman with the issue and blog and the elder's daughter. It was a very encouraging word. I came home and ate lunch. I grabbed a quick nap. I talked to Mom & Dad who are doing well and taking a trip to Wilmington this weekend. I then headed over to Marg's and helped load up. She was doing 2 events tonight. The event I worked with a retirement party for a teacher/football coach and there were over 300 people there. We unloaded in the rain. Set up as it finished raining (we were working under a tent). The weather was nice for most of the event. It started raining again as we finished up. I'm beat. I'm going to take a nice hot shower and go to sleep.

Share this:

- Share